BY L. J. L. -Why was he called so soon from all

Who held him dear on earth? Why has he left us thus so soon, In the vigor of his youth? A mother dear he leaves behind-

Brothers, who loved him well-Sisters, that will mourn for him. As their sad bearts can tell. Ambitious, kind and amiable-When last he chanced to roam

He little thought that death was near-So near his home, sweet home friend he was to rich and pop A friend to those in need;

Why was he called to leave us thus-So young, to pure, so true? God's ways are ways of mystery,

And though they may seem hard, He's gone to that bright home above. With angels for his guard.

To his dear friends he bade adieu; They've laid him down to rest; Then do not mourn for him that's gone-

Then give him up to God above. Prepare to meet him soon! Each life is transient just like his-None can foretell his doom. COLUMBUS, August 7, 1861.

As Colonel J. V. Guthrie, the galiant commander of the First Kentucky Regiment was walking along Third street yesterday, he espiced a gentleman on the opposite side of the street, whose appearance indicated a person he had seen before. Approaching the stranger, he recognized Captain Charles H. Tylor, formerly of the United States Secand Dragoons, but recently a Lieutenant Colonel in the rebel cavalry, and at the Manassas battle Adjutant General to General Bonham. Colonel Guthrie halled the rebel officer and said, "Colonel, you are my prisoner." Colonel Tylor stated that he was an officer in the Confederate army, but traveling as a citizen and without arms he did not anticipate an arrest in Cincinnati.

Colonel Tylor is here on a visit to his wife, who is daughter of Dr. Wright, the medical superintendent of the Department of the Ohio. At Hat teras Inlet there are three steamers and a pilot boat privateering—one of them, the Gordon, run the blockade at Charleston, and the whole coast up to Hatteras Inlet, ten days ago, since when she has captured the brig Wm. The gunboats are being collected and mounted at Norfolk to be taken down the canal. The bark Glen, of Portland, with Government coal, was captured a week ago and taken into Beaufort N. C. The refugees state the Confederates scarcely regard the coast blockade at all. During all this time several gunboats have been quietly anchored at Old Point. The frigate Wabash has arrived from Charleston for coal and water, having been relieved by the Roanoke. She captured the schooner Mary Alice, of New York, which had been taken by the piratical schooner Dixie. The prise crew are now prisoners on the Wabash.
